Journal of Language and Sexuality

The Journal of Language and Sexuality aims to present research on the discursive formations of sexuality, including sexual desire, sexual identities, sexual politics and sexuality in diaspora. Of interest is linguistic work in the widest possible sense, including work in sociolinguistics, anthropological linguistics, pragmatics, semantics, discourse analysis, applied linguistics, and other modes of language-centered inquiry that will contribute to the investigation of discourses of sexuality and their linguistic and social consequences. On a theoretical level, the journal is indebted to Queer Linguistics as its major influence.

Information for contributors / Call for Papers

The inaugural volume of the Journal of Language and Sexuality (JLS) will survey the range of topics that experts in language and sexuality studies are addressing. The editors invite individual papers or sets of papers for inclusion in subsequent issues of the journal. Papers should be submitted via the JLS electronic submission system, which will be active in the Fall of 2011 via the journal's homepage (www.benjamins.com/catalog/jls). Please direct correspondence to the editors at the addresses below.
