Announcing a New Journal in Language and Sexuality Studies

The Journal of Language and Sexuality

Edited by William L. Leap & Heiko Motschenbacher

The Journal of Language and Sexuality aims to present research on the discursive formations of sexuality, including sexual desire, sexual identities, sexual politics and sexuality in diaspora. Of interest is linguistic work in the widest possible sense, including work in sociolinguistics, anthropological linguistics, pragmatics, semantics, discourse analysis, applied linguistics, and other modes of language-centered inquiry that will contribute to the investigation of discourses of sexuality and their linguistic and social consequences. On a theoretical level, the journal is indebted to Queer Linguistics as its major influence.

Call for manuscripts

The first two issues of the journal will survey the range of topics that colleagues are addressing in language and sexuality studies. The editors invite proposals for individual papers or for a group of papers addressing a common theme for inclusion in one of these issues. Please submit to the editors, at the addresses indicated below, a 500 word description of the intended paper, showing its connection to language and sexuality studies, before April 1, 2011.
